However, sensing he needed a broader musical experience, Chopin's parents sent him to study with Liszt. As a composer, Chopin has acquired increased stature after a period in the late 19th century when his work often was judged by academic standards that were insensible to its individual character. Chopin formed a friendship with Franz Liszt and was admired by many of his other musical contemporaries including Life of Chopin Schumann.

French composer Hector Berlioz followed the ideal of 19th century Romanticism, also Kubba and Youngpassim.
