It is impossible to hear his confessions, to follow him in his aspirations, to hear the tale of his visions, his trances, his dreams, without catching his enthusiasm and bestowing on him our sympathy. Mackay is, however, a careful, even precise rider, and he keeps a firm hand on his restless Pegasus--so firm that, as his taste always leads him to depict the most fanciful and fine emotions, his steady resoluteness of restraint commands not only our admiration but our respect. It is an astonishing production--the work of a true musician in our tongue. Blue cloth boards with gilt lettering. Love Letters of a Violinist and other Poems.
