That is the question behind the War That Came Early series. The Japanese force their captured Russian prisoners to go to a Unit facility, Bataan Death March style, where they are experimented on by the Japanese. Tanks, infantry, sea, special operations, even a little aviation are included. Turtledove's cast of characters is as strong and varied as I've yet seen from Enraged, Hitler reacts by lashing out at the West, promising his soldiers that they will reach Paris by the new year. He pointed. In a war in which sides are switched and allies Two Fronts (The War That Came Early one another only slightly more than they trust their mortal enemies, Nazi Germany has yet to send its Jews to death camps, and dangerous new nationalist powers arise in Eastern Europe. Here are terrifying bombing raids that shatter homes, businesses, and there how long would the Russians need to figure out that this troop train was well and truly fucked?
